Forecast For East Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 29 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Wednesday, sunny spells, occasional showers, mainly in west. Rather windy.

Today:
Bright or sunny spells and occasional showers through the morning, these more frequent towards the west. The showers become more isolated into the afternoon with sunny spells more prevalent. Rather windy at times, easing later. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Tonight:
Skies clearing into the evening, and turning chilly. However, thickening cloud will return from the west later, with outbreaks of rain arriving in the west before daybreak. Winds freshen again. Minimum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Thursday:
Outbreaks of rain gradually spreading east, with some locally heavy bursts. The rain easing into the evening, perhaps with some cloud breaks developing. Rather windy again. Maximum temperature 15 deg C (59 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
A very unsettled spell with showers or longer spells of rain, these sometimes heavy or thundery. Often windy, with gales over the hills at times, perhaps generally very windy Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.